

Spelling list: // words

Towards the end of a word, it's sometimes necessary to repeat a consonant when there's a short vowel sound . This occurs in spelling when the short vowel sound is followed by specific letters: f , s , and l .

In the words listed here, the l is doubled after the short vowel sound .

Consider the word bell which contains a short /e/ sound and concludes with an l sound. This mandates the usage of a double l in its spelling.

Similarly, in the word fill , there's a short /i/ sound before the l sound, which indicates the need for a double l as well.

Say these // words aloud as you learn them. Can you hear the short vowel sound ?
