

Spelling list: Characters in Rebecca

In Rebecca by Daphne du Maurier, a young woman marries the wealthy and mysterious Maxim de Winter and moves to his grand estate, Manderley. Haunted by the presence of Maxim's deceased first wife, Rebecca, the new Mrs. de Winter unravels the secrets that shroud the house.

Winter	The Narrator, a young and naive woman, struggles to fill the shoes of Rebecca as the new Mrs. de Winter .
Maxim	Maxim de Winter, a wealthy and enigmatic widower, becomes entangled in a whirlwind romance with a young woman, drawing her into the dark mysteries of his past.
Danvers	Mrs. Danvers , the housekeeper, maintains an eerie devotion to the memory of Rebecca.
Rebecca	Rebecca , with her captivating beauty and enigmatic personality, casts a shadow over Manderley and its inhabitants.
Jack	Jack Favell, a cunning and manipulative cousin of Rebecca, threatens to expose dark secrets that could unravel the de Winter family.
Favell	Jack Favell , a cunning and manipulative cousin of Rebecca, threatens to expose dark secrets that could unravel the de Winter family.
Frank	Frank Crawley, the loyal and trusted estate manager, provides guidance and support to the new Mrs. de Winter in navigating the mysterious world of Manderley.
Crawley	Frank Crawley , the loyal and trusted estate manager, provides guidance and support to the new Mrs. de Winter in navigating the mysterious world of Manderley.
Beatrice	Beatrice Lacy, the sharp and perceptive sister of Maxim de Winter, offers a sympathetic ear and a source of comfort to the new Mrs. de Winter.
Lacy	Beatrice Lacy , the sharp and perceptive sister of Maxim de Winter, offers a sympathetic ear and a source of comfort to the new Mrs. de Winter.

Julyan

Colonel Julyan , the local magistrate, investigates Rebecca's mysterious death.